hearing conservation seminar

about us

Musicians' Hearing Services have been providing advice and recommendations to musicians for over 25 years. We have experience in the preservation of hearing across all aspects of the music industry so are well equipped to talk to your company, group or cast members about the risks involved with exposure to loud music and how best to protect hearing.

We are passionate about the specific hearing needs of musicians and entertainment industry personnel. Our highly qualified team of audiologists and earcare professionals regularly provide advice and support to band members in West End theatre productions, the Royal Opera House, the Musicians Union and musicians nationwide; as well as working closely with the British Association for Performs Arts Medicine.

your seminar

Our interactive seminar will provide information on the following:

- How the auditory system works and where the damage occurs.
- The Control of Noise at Work Regulations (2005) and how this relates to the music and entertainment industry
- Risks associated with noise exposure
- The difference between perception of sound and measured sound pressure levels
- The importance of hearing surveillance and use hearing protection.
- Best practice guidelines for hearing conservation

There are regular opportunities to ask questions throughout. Our presentation can be tailored to suit your specific audience requirements.

Your Hearing Conservation Seminar by Musicians' Hearing Services is £500 plus travelling expenses.

We can also provide on-site hearing testing and custom-made hearing protection, dependent on numbers involved. Testing would need to be carried out in a quiet area.

Please feel free to contact us so that we can discuss your individual requirements, and tailor the seminar to suit your needs.
